Special Commemorative Ticket Closure of Great Victoria Street Station

From the early 1800s, Great Victoria Street Station has played a leading role in Belfast's rich history. Since a station first opened on the site nearly 200 years ago, Great Victoria Street has served the people of Northern Ireland through good times and bad, including two World Wars. In 2024, it closed its doors for the final time. We are grateful to everyone who has travelled through the station over the years, and look forward to welcoming you at our next stop – Belfast Grand Central Station.

Thanks for the memories!
